

PRESS RELEASE

Journey with us to the bottom of The Garden...

“To err is human, but it feels divine” Mae West

Miss Pinup International 2013 Porcelain and her group of talented performers will be visiting Adelaide on 6th June for a one off show as the first stop on their National Tour for their new show 'The Garden of Eden' as part of the Adelaide Cabaret Fringe Festival.

This show is a collaboration between a variety of performers focusing on the darker side of the human condition and centred on the theme of 'trying to human'.

Porcelain and the Femme Fatale have sold out regularly to NSW crowds with their unique style of show which focusing on celebrating the different and the unique and embracing alternative lifestyles and cultures. Porcelain stated the festival was “the perfect place for the first show of our National Tour. This festival promotes and celebrates the fringe performers those trying something a little different and providing different experiences to Australian audiences. There are some amazing performers on the mainstream circuit but it is my personal belief that on the fringe is where the magic happens.”

Porcelain will also be running a dark burlesque/ dance workshop while she is in town. Participants will have the chance to learn a popular Porcelain and the Femme Fatale routine and have the option of performing it with the show on the evening of 6th June at Nexus Arts. Tickets to the workshop and show can be purchased at <http://www.cabaretrfringefestival.com>.
